Lesson for August 2, 1964

'. . .No False Witnessing. . .'
Exodus 20:16

The intention of this ninth commandment seems to be to guard anyones character and reputation, and to close the door of opportunity against those who seek to gain advantage through false testimony.

Reputation is society's value of a person's character. Character is what a person is in his inner life. It is important that society give a person a good reputation, but far more important is God's estimate of a person. When God gave the patriarch these laws, He knew the value of keeping them.

For one thing, the intention of this command is that truth shall always be the basis of our communication. We are not to utter false reports or join hands with the wicked and malicious person (Exodus 23:1) We are not to propogate false witness or deal falsely with anyone. When John the Baptist was confronted by soldiers what they must do, he replied, 'Rob no one by violence or by false accusation'; (Luke 3:14) Paul warned against the sins truth when he said, 'Put away falsehood' (eph. 4:25) So we must guard against a false opinion about someone we do not know. We do not pass along gossip or opinions about others whom we do not know.

And we shouldn't make side statements about some other person. It's very easy to upgrade ourselves by seeking to down-grade others. Sometimes we enter into false reports with a friend against a common enemy. Joining hands with a false report, or a report of only half-truth violates this rule.

Then, taking a statement out of its context to falsely someone's statement is a malicious pious way to bear false witness. A friend said about another individual whom he only knew by reputation, who happened to be connected with a new version of the Bible, 'He must be a tool of the enemy.'' or words to that effect. I asked if he had read the new version to which he admitted he had not, but was taking one reviewer's estimate. Not only is this unchristian, but it leaves a false estimate or impression of another.

Was it not Shakespeare who said,
'Who steals my purse steals trash. . .
But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him
And makes me poor indeed'.

Jesus says, 'Judge not that you be not judged.'' We do well to heed this command, and the influence of our lives will be more helpful to others. 'Thou shalt not bear false witness.'' Find your place in God's house this Sunday, and ask His guidance in helping you to be a good witness for Christ. Next week the final command, ''Thou Shalt Not Covet.

County Included In Drought Relief Request To Govt.

Appomattox County and a number of surrounding counties are included in Governor Harrison's request to the U. S. Department of Agriculture for drought assistance for 48 Virginia counties. Local and state USDA Disaster Committees have requested the aid.

The request is for permission for farmers to graze cattle and cut hay on land that they had put into the various federal conservation, crop rotation and feed grain programs. If approved, their payments from the government would be reduced accordingly.

The recent rains were both insufficient and too late to blot out the damage to many feed crops and pastures from prolonged drought this summer and last, the USDA was told.

Eight Northern and Western Virginia counties had been approved for such assistance earlier.

Local counties included in the most recent request to Washington are Appomattox, Amelia, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Nottoway, Powhatan and Prince Edward.

Sherwill 4-H Member To Attend AIC Convention

Audrey Cardwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Travis J. Cardwell of Concord, will soon be packing to attend an expense paid trip to the American Institute of Cooperation Convention in East Lansing, Michigan, in August.

Audrey was selected as a state winner in the agri-business program at Short Course and was awarded the trip.

Audrey was one of three Campbell County 4-H Club members tapped as members of the Virginia Chapter of 4-H All Stars during the annual 4-H Short Course at VPI earlier this month.

She is a member of the Sherwill Community 4-H Club. During her six years as a 4-H member, she has completed 14 projects. She is a member of the 4-H Honor Club, second vice president of her local 4-H club. She attended the State Conservation Camp in 1963 and was a state winner in the "Make-It-Yourself with Wool" contest at the State Fair last year.
